The Dental Connection

Exploring the relationship between dental health and chronic disease

Friday, Jan. 12, 2007 • At the Lafayette Veteran's Hall

Featuring:

Dick Kunin, MD:

• The benefits and dangers of flouride

- Postgraduate medical training at UCSF and Stanford
- Pioneer in nutritional medicine, and author of Meganutrition
- Expert in fluoride and heavy metal toxicity

Mitchell Corwin, DC, Applied Kinesiologist:

• Why silver amalgam fillings are a greater threat of mercury toxicity than environmental/food sources, and how they play a role in chronic illness.

• How a Temporomandibular Joint (TMJ) problem relates to chronic illnesses.

- A holistic health care practitioner of 24 years utilizing an eclectic blend of applied kinesiology and energetic techniques, specializing in heavy metals.
- His work is based on the primal survival systems of fight/flight, digestive, immune and reproductive/hormonal systems as they relate to chronic illnesses, and neurological disorders.

Andrew and Lynne Marshall, DDS:

• Understanding the relationship between periodontal disease, heart disease and diabetes

• Using state-of-the-art technology and bio-compatible restorative materials

• Advanced studies in Neuromuscular Dentistry

- 1987 Graduates of UOP School of Dentistry
- Continued education: Las Vegas Institute for Advanced Dental Studies
